At Baker we find J. P. Samuels as an instructor of sufficient ability. At Applegate Miss Mae Drury is doing leading act in the educational line. At Gladstone is Prof. Fred McDowell, doing good work for the community.

At Moores, Prof. A. A. Fritts is holding the fort and doing the work of a veteran. While at Oakland T. F. At Post Oak Miss Ina Vaughn is succeeding in impressing both parents and pupils as to her ability to overcome the hardest of educational problems.

At Seminary we find C. C. Newcom doing whatever he can for the upbuilding of the educational cause. While at Heath we find the invincable Miss Wanda Marvel doing a work, of which, all in her district should be proud At Going Springs Miss Addie Maynard is to be found drilling the young in the way which they should go and at Weston we behold Miss Bertha Rankin doing a work that will stand as did "the house built on the rock."

The Teachers Association at Seminary Springs was a grand success, while the Field-Day at Post Oak was something that is not beaten every week, but others should write these meetings up and not leave it to visitors to do that work. What is the matter with the Secretary of division number three?

Division number three is doing omething towards libraries, but on Friday night, Nov. 13th., a "Double Hoodoo Day" but Miss Bertha Rankin undoubtedly carried the left hind foot of more than one grave-yard rabbit for at time this she gave a box supper ather school at Weston. At 7:30 the house was called to order and a delightful program was rendered, consisting of songs, monologues and dialogues by the children and excellent music by the Fords Ferry String Band.

The house would not hold the people although it is a large one, it was crowded to the limit and the old saying, "there's always room for one more," was for once found to be untrue.

The boxes were sold by J. B. Hughes, who proved himself to be an excellent auctioneer. The result of this sale was $13.40, but to the surprise of all, the sale was not to end here, for the energetic little teacher had determined to spring a surprise upon the audience. This she did, but very agreeably, by announcing that there was an enormous, fine

Proving That There Are More Ways Generally Easy to Find Suitable Place Than One of Getting a Seat in Crowded Car.

He was not tagged the meanest man in town, but he might well have been. The first thing he did after stepping inside the car was to fall over a suitmade the owner of the suitcase uncomfortable.

"I am sorry," he apologized. "The but I have no place else to put it."

"No place else to put it?" repeated the irate passenger. "You can eastly find a place. Any place would be better than right here by the door."

The man in the corner seat surveyed the well-filled car doubtfully. "But I can't move," he said, "and I can't shove the suitcase any further along with nobody to look after it. Somebody might swipe it."

The irate passenger reflected a moment. "I'll tell you what to do," he said. "Ask somebody to change places with you. Almost any man down there in the middle of the car would be willing to swap. You ought to try, anyway. Somebody is going to get a broken neck if that suitcase is left standing where it is much longer.'

"Sir," he said, addressing a gentleman of portly mien, "will you change places with me? I have a seat in the corner, but my suitcase appears to be in the way. If you will let me sit here I will appreciate the favor."

"Certainly," said the stout man, and began to rise. Before fully surrendering his advantageous position, however, he looked toward the corner and sat down again heavily.

"Movies" Not So New.

The "movies" (perhaps we should 1200 omit the quotation marks, the word is 1600 working into the language so fast) are considered a strictly twentieth-century development. Here is an amusement advertisement which appeared in the public prints in England exactly 101 years ago:

'At the Duke of Marlborough's Head in Fleet street, is now to be seen a new invented machine, composed of five curious pictures, with moving figures, representing the history of the heathen gods, which move as artificially as if living; the like not seen before in Europe. The whole contains near an hundred figures, beside ships, beasts, fish, fowl and other embellishments, some near a foot in hight; all of which have their respective and peculiar motions, their very heads, legs and arms, hands and finers, artificially moving to what they perform, and setting one foot before another like living creatures, in such a manner that nothing but nature can excel it. It will continue to be seen every day from 10 in the morning until 10 at night."

This will probably hold you for a while, although it must be admitted that the moving pictures of 1812 were different in mechanism and extent from those which play so large a part in the life of 1913.—Marper's Weekly.

"HE DIED FOR ME"

In the midst of internecine strife. When life is only worth a life, When human life is cheaply bought, And sympathy is vainly sought,

There in the war was one young man Who proved that human being can Give life itself for comrade dear, And face dread death without a fear. Well these two friends each other knew.

and friendships such are only few. The elder comrade had a wife As dear to him as his own life. The younger knew his girls and boys le knew his sorrows and his joys.

A happy life the elder led, By toil he earned his daily bread. The younger knew them round the board, And ate with them their frugal hoard;

He knew that love with them abode, And knew that kindness was their code When war had sounded its alarms Throughout the land to towns and farms.

These two men who were friends indeed

Became each others friends in need. They heard the South's long, loud

They answered to the clash of steel, And felt their duty bade them go o meet the unrelenting foe.

Bidding farewell to friends that day, Though sad, they proudly marched away

To defend the South; their own dear For her to fight, for her to stand

There was the bitter separation, There was hasty preparation These two good friends were forced to make For this sad leave they had to take. They saw how the sad wife grieved When parting, though she still believ-

And hoped that they would return-Oh! How her burdened heart would

When the sad truth at last she learned.

Her pale, wan face away she turned To hide from them her blinding tears As well to hide from them her fears. With tears the younger turned to go

With faltering steps weak and slow; From these dear friends he turned

On this last fateful, farewell day. To see them sadly thus depart Would melt the stoutest, hardest heart With sorrow thus to see them turn Made his kind heart to swell and burn. He saw the parting last farewell

Of husband and wife, sad to tell; He saw the last farewell embrace, While tears flowed down his own sad

He was the younger by some years For those his own he had no fears As had his comrade for his own, For love of wife he had not known.

The parting strangely left impress, Causing him much and sore distress; was saddened by this scene;

Sadly touched he had often been, Though never to such extent as this When he saw the last farewell kiss

Before they started for the war, Miles away, from their home afar. Then afterward for many weeks,

The painful thought would blanch his cheeks-The children looking wan and pale,

And their mother so weak and frail, As back and forth she paced the floor.

Fearing that she might nevermore See her loving husband again; She'd sadly sigh and weep, and then Think of God, to whom she would

For strength to bear the load that day, The load of trouble; pain and woe, And then she'd rise refreshed to go Of gaining from the fertile soil Food for children, ever dear, Though often she gave way to fear.

Then how she toiled and lived and prayed. Read the Book, trusted and obeyed,

Was weary years afterward told To him who had been soldier bold, Whose patriot heart was no less true Than any man who wore the Blue. This man went forth to give the South His service at the cannon's mouth. When eating the soldier's common fare. The youth took less than was his

That his friend might be stronger, That he might survive the longer,

And return to his own loved ones When war had ceased to fire his guns. Alas! Alas! A sad day came Which prived the younger could die game. They were captured, he and his friend. And one must die! His life must end In all the wars and bitter strife, Retaliation is always rife. Now, only a few days before, Some Federal soldiers by the shore Of the river were shot down dead: Now these men had to face the dread Of being shot; they stand in line,

The lots are cast, the hands they bind, And on the elder man by lot It fell to be cruelly shot!

Then to the captain the younger And begged that his poor life be lent

To save the life of the other, The precious life a brother. The astonished captain readily gave His consent the other to save,

The youth was glad his life to sell To save his friend he loved so well. The youth now sadly took his place, A smile of glory lit his face;

He smiled a moment, held his breath 10 22 4t And thus he calmly met his death. Angels looked down and wept for joy At sight of this angelic boy.

Common beings oft wonder why For another, one friend could die. There is nothing that man can do That so thrills us through and through

As that grand deed of that brave Except the martyr for God's truth,

But man for man will sometimes die, To save his, friend he'll often try, But he has hope that he may live, That God to him his life will give. Without this hope to buoy him up,

Man would not often drink the cup, The cup of danger always found When his friend is about to drown, But this young man now firmly stood, Willingly there he shed his blood-He gave his own for his friend's life To send him back to his dear wife.

In this world of seeking for self, Of grinding greed, money and pelf, Tis inspiring, hopeful to read Of an example free from greed. But few there are on this old earth-

In this sad world there is a dearth Of great souls who can rise above The things of life and die for love. How transformed this world would

If we could thus our duty see! This earth would be an eden then; And love of God would rule again. Few there be of such heroic mould That would for life let life be sold. Carved on the stone which marks the

Where lies this boy of noble race, These words as simple as can be, They are just these: "HE DIED FOR

Such love for man is rarely shown, But death for life more often known; But one there is who loves us all, Who chooses not that we shall fail, If we but love Him who life gave, Who gave His life mankind to save; The finite mind can never know The sorrow, sadness, pain and woe That Christ endured while on the

To cover mankind's wretched loss. The neavy debt he freely paid, His precious life he calmly laid Upon the cruel cross to win A world of men from damning sin! Now, while this single case of man Is told by men throughout the land,

The Savior men will not obey And thus be wholly saved, to day! Christ the savior, God's own dear

Died on the cross and grandly won Great salvation for us complete, And made for us a safe retreat.

May this story cause us to think That we are standing on the brink Of the eternal, boundless shore-Let's take Christ forevermore!

To her daily round of grinding toil But This Does Not Bother Mrs. Burton, Under the Circumstances.

> Houston, Texas.--In an interesting letter from this city, Mrs. S. C. Burton writes as follows: "I think it is my duty to tell you what your medicine, Cardui, the woman's tonic, has done for me.

I was down sick with womanly trouble and my mother advised several different treatments, but they didn't seem to do me any good. I lingered along for three or four months, and for three weeks, was in bed, so sick I couldn't bear for y one to walk across the floor.

My husband advised me to try Cardui, he woman's tonic. I have taken two pottles of Cardui, am feeling fine, gained 15 pounds and do all of my housework. Friends hardly know me, I am so well.' If you mafer from any of the ailments so common to women, don't allow the trouble to become chronic. Begin taking Cardul to-day. It is purely vegetable, to ingredients acting in a gentle, natural way on the weakened womanly constitution. You run no risk in trying Cardui. It has been helping weak women back to health and strength for more than 50

Four wagonloads of English wounded have arrived at Cairo: the men were hurt in fighting between Suez and Ismalia, There has been a mutiny of the native troops and many well-known Egyptians have been arrested.

The Turkish General Staff reports that the second line of the Russian defenses in the Caucasus have been taken by the Turkish troops.

THE KELLOGG-HAINES SINGING PARTY.

There are five in the Kellogg-Haines Singing Party-three gentlemen and two ladies. Much of their program is given in elegant and appropriate costumes. Some of these numbers are the best examples of humor and wit that good literature has to offer. Scenes are also given in grand opera.

The chief claim that is made for this company is that they present entertaining concerts of such solid musical character and fresh wholesomeness that they are sure to captivate the musical layman, while winning admiration from the musical critic of the severest type.

It is doubtful if any other mixed Kellogg-Haines Party in that sinking of individuality and perfect blending of voices that comprise ideal quartet work. It is heard in the singing of the foremost male quartets. Professor Charles A. Prosserm, su perintendent of the New Albany (Ind. Chautauqua, says, "The Kellogg Haines Singing Party have given the greatest satisfaction of all the musical organizations that have appeared a our assembly in the last four years."

Little Things.

A good-bye kiss is a little thing, With your hand on the door to go, But it takes the venomout of the sting Of a thoughtless word or a cruel fling That you made an hour ago.

A kiss of greeting is sweet and rare, After the toil of the day. But it smoothes the furrows out of the care, And lines on the forehead you once called fair,

In the years that have flown away.

Tis a little thing to say, "You are kind-I love you, my dear," each night; But it sends a thrill through the heart

I find, For love is tender, as love is blind, As we climb life's rugged height.

We starve each other for love's caress We take but do not give It seems so easy some soul to bless,

But we dole love grudgingly, less and less, Till 'tis bitter and hard to live.

Hunter Is Killed by Wounded Deer.

Lindsay, Ontario, Nov. 24-An unusual hunting accident occured at Buck Lake, five miles south of Wilberforce, by which William Hughie, Jr., of that village, lost his life.

Hughie had wounded a deer, which turned and attacked him, while he was in his canoe, pitching him into the lake.

A companion, who heard his cries for help, swam out to his assistance, and brought him to shore alive, but he died shortly afterward from the wounds inflicted by the deer and immersion in the icy water.

CALLED FATHER OF SCIENCE QUAKER CITY BEHIND TIMES HOW FAR IS MADISONVILLE? needed.

Truly Wonderful Thinker and Inventor Was Archimedes, Famous Through the Centuries.

On December 10 of the year 212 B. C. perished the great Archimedes, murdered by a brutal, ignorant Roman soldier, as he sat with bowed head in his house at Syracuse thinking out the mighty problems of science.

Archimedes was born at Syracuse, Sicily, B. C. 287, and was therefore at the time of his death seventy-five years old. He was the greatest man of his day, and will ever rank as one of the profoundest thinkers and reasoners of all time. In mathematics and natural philosophy he had no peer on earth, and it is not too much to say that he is fairly entitled to be called the "father of science." He would have discovered the differential calculus had algebra been known in his day, and he came very near doing so even as it was. He anticipated the astronomical system subsequently worked out by Copernicus. He laid the foundation of hydrostatics. He invented the method for the determination of specific gravity. He formulated the true theory of the lever and uttered the ever famous words, "Give me whereon to stand and I will move the earth." In theoretical mechanics no advance was made upon his ideas during the eighteen centuries between him and Leonardo da

It was Archimedes who invented the endless screw, the most important mechanical contrivance known to science. From the teeming brain of the old Syracusan came also the idea of the screw pump, the hydraulic engine and the burning mirror. He was the creator of the catapult, the artillery of the olden time, whose dreadful bolts were the terror of ancient armies. He invented another engine, the ponderous claws of which, reaching over the walls, lifted up ships and their crews and then suddenly dropped them into the sea, while with his great "sun glasses" he was able to set on fire such of the enemies' ships as could not be reached with the grappling ma-but then it is claimed that they do infinite good to a certain quality of skin-that white skin which so often accompanies red-gold hair and a peach complexion.

The hot sea sand bath is prepared in rather a peculiar way. A large sheet is placed on the floor and covered thickly with smoking hot sand Then the "patient" is wrapped up in the sheet and quietly massaged. After five minutes the "patient" is rolled over and over a dozen times and then sand is cool and the operation finished, unless a very enthusiastic beauty lover has the courage to begin Lesson in English.

Many travelers have the unfortunate failing of attributing ignorance and backwardness to everyone who wears the strange garb and observes the strange customs of a foreign land. Often, as in the case of the tourist in China that the New York Tribune tells of, there is a rude awakening.

When his steamer touched at Hongkong, the tourist was delighted to see you in the part." a Chinese woman in the costume of her country come on board ship. She was the first Chinese woman that he had seen in the native dress, and he etermined to take a picture. Advancing to within a few feet of the little woman, he leveled the camera at her and began to exclaim loudly in amateur pidgin English:

Can catchee?

The Chinese woman looked at him in deep disgust, and replied in perfect

A Fair Offer.

It was at the moving-picture show. In front sat a young woman, very pretty and modishly costumed, with her son, a youngster of perhaps six years. Just behind sat a young man-a goodlooking young man-a well-dressed man. The young man watched the young woman very much more closely than he did the screen across the stage. For the first quarter of an hour he did not dare to speak to her. But she was so attractive that he cudgeled his brains for sonle excuse to begin a conversation. At last he hit upon the idea of pretending he was a stranger -- foreigner-in need of information. He leaned over and said in his best French:

"Pardon, madame, may I address a few words to you?"

The six-year-old escort turned around with a courteous inclination of his curly head.

"If you wish, sir," said he, "I will translate for you. My mother does net understand French."-New York vening Post.

SURGICAL WORK MADE EASIER

Anesthetizing Machines Render Possible Operations Hitherto Scarcely Deemed Worth Thinking Of.

Machines for administering ether, chloroform or other anesthetics have been devised, which make the work of the surgeon easier and safer for the patient. An improved machine is being used in several eastern hospitals which is motor-driven and seems destined not only to simplify present methods of anesthetizing, but to open a field to surgery which heretofore has been almost beyond the reach of the knife. With the new machine it is possible to maintain normal lung pressure while the chest cavity is being explored, a problem solved as a mere by-product of me- WANTED-Corn and Hay, Hogs chanical anesthesis, while the patient is freed from distress as the effect These baths are fairly expensive, of the drug wears away. Canada, being a vast territory, sparsely settled, has important problems of communication and the government has taken every precaution to see that none of the trans-continental rail-way Rather an interesting case has been facilities are impaired by the destruction of bridges or other strategic points. That accounts for the sentries at bridges, along difficult stretches of track, and in the mountain passes.

All along the route we saw troop trains rushing the volunteers from the far West to the mobilization headquarters near Quebec. The Canadian Pacific is handling most of this traffic, being best equipped to do so because, in its own shops it was able to build nine special kitchen cars in less than a week. These are painted white inside, and are provided with storage facilities for four days' food including refrigeration and with kitchen apparatus sufficient to prepare three meals a day for 1,000 men.

Of course the troops are not given elaborate or rich meals, but they are well fed, the kitchen cars containing tea and coffee urns, hot water boilers and all necessary conveniences. The meals are served from enameled plates in the cars in which the troops are quartered. A detail of soldiers does the serving. It is a big task to transport several thousand men from Western Canada to Quebec on short notice, and Canada has a right to congratulate herself on the promptness and efficiency with which it has been done. - Leslie's.
